The Good COP

Fellas, here's a cross-eyed puzzle for you. It was in 1992 that countries across the globe joined an international treaty, United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC), to limit rising temperatures. Do you know that the final word to review this work is done at Conference of the Parties (COP)? It's Paris, which is gearing up for COP 21, this year. Let's quiz you on few of our good COP venues of the past.

1. It all started here—the first COP, in the largest city of Germany. (6)

2. This high-profile meeting venue witnessed the presence of 115 world leaders in 2009. (10)

3. The Persian Gulf coastal city, literally known as the 'big tree,' hosted COP 18. (4)

4. COP 3 went to Japan in 1997. (5)

5. The fashion city, and home to Italy's stock exchange became the venue for COP 9. (5)

6. It was a debate on climate change at home in 2002 during COP 8. (8)

7. The Conference of Parties took place here not just once but twice in 1998 and 2004. (11)

8. This Kenyan city, which derives its name from the river flowing there, hosted COP 12. (7)
